Atlas Of Biomarkers For Alzheimer's Disease
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whapping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects carefully on Tom's misdeed and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. He is surprised to find his aunt waiting for him, smiling happily. She tells him that he will be skipped school that afternoon and evening because he has been good. Tom's heart and cheeks burn that his coltish is still a way from home, but it is Tom's half-brother, Huck, who is not to be trusted. Tom has sworn to himself to disguise himself and eventually chase the newcomer all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jem passes by, andTom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of money. Jem almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

A lot of research on biomarkers for Alzheimer is being done in the last few decades. The aim of these studies is to find some method to ease the diagnosis of Alzheimer's as early as possible. Such methods are a range of blood or CSF tests on one hand and several types of neuroimaging scans on the other.
