The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and is told by his father that school is to be stopped, and that Tom must work the next day. The next morning, Tom is ordered to work in the laundry by his father. Tom is shocked and refuses. He is then taken to the laundry and eventually learns the new duties.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of nostril. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects calmly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime. The house is quiet, and Aunt Polly wonders if Tom has been skipping school that afternoon and going to the stores. Her alarm is further heightened by a report from his landlord that his clothes are still on from the day before. Tom's half-brother, Sid, has been visited by Mark Twain, and Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy about his exploits. Tom and Aunt Polly are both humiliated and upset.

Tom goes out of the house to wait for his school friends. He plans to tell them all about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom of the horrors of the town. She wonders if his self-esteem is still intact. But Sid, Tom's half-brother, has managed to get away with too much. Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.
