The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom’s mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tomcomes home at suppertime. His hair is still wet from the rain and he is barefoot. Tom’s half-brother, Sid, has disappeared, and Tom is not sure if he should have been skipped school that afternoon and went elsewhere. Tom’s mother, Mary, is not around, and Tom doesn’t want to be punished. He goes out to look for Sid, but Sid, Tom’s half-brother, has run away and hasn’t come back. Tom feels like he should have stayed home and didn’t do any mischief.

When he returns home, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiterwash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “whie alley,” a kind of marble. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
