The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper. The news of Tom's escape to the river makes Tom's father rather cross. "Well, I am glad about the adventure," says Tom's father. "You will be skipped school that afternoon and won't have to do your homework."

Conversation turns to Tom's missed breakfast. Tom tells of how Aunt Polly is satisfied with her work. Tom's father says, "Well, Tom has learned the hard way that his mother is still around to give him punishment." Tom's father reflects on the adventure and eventually chases the newsboys all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of miracle. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his task.
