The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects thoughtfully on Tom’s misbehavior and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, and Aunt Polly asks him if he was skipping school that afternoon and went downtown. Tom’s face falls, and he tells her that he was, but he was only skipping school to buy new clothes and see Aunt Polly was satisfied, but not Tom. He’s half brother, but Aunt Polly is the one to dispose of him in the end.

Tom goes out of the house in a rage, but later he is out of it, and Aunt Polly wonders if she should have whipped him. Tom and the new arrival enter the street, and Aunt Polly is not surprised to see Tom’S new shirt and shoes that his clothes is still awfully dirty but not fit. Tom’s half brother.

When he returns home in the evening, Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten up the fence. Jim passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of nectarine. Jim almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his任务.

Madeleine Leininger’s Contribution to Nursing Theory: Transcultural Nursing

Madeleine Leininger’s theory of Transcultural Nursing, also known as Culture Care Theory, falls under both the category of a specialty, as well as a general practice area.

Leininger’s theory defines care as the essence and dominant domain of nursing, and is unique in suggesting that patient need and the resulting intervention should be determined by culture and lifestyle.

Cultural history combines the approaches of anthropology and history to look at popular cultural traditions and cultural interpretations of historical experience. It examines the records and narrative descriptions of past matter, encompassing the continuum of events (occurring in succession and leading from the past to the present and even into the future) pertaining to a culture.

The psychosocial approach looks at individuals in the context of the combined influence that psychological factors and the surrounding social environment have on their physical and mental wellness and their ability to function. This approach is used in a broad range of helping professions in health and social care settings as well as by medical and social science researchers.
