The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects coldly on Tom's mischief and how she let him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and tells Aunt Polly about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly explores the possibility of Tom being expelled from school that afternoon and grows concerned, but for now, Tom's half-brother Jack and Tom's new friend Huckleberry Finn are all that Aunt Polly is satisfied with. Tom has sworn the boy to secrecy about his latest escapades.

Tom goes out of the house into the night air, and as he walks down the streets of St. Petersburg, he begins to reflect on his adventures and what they mean. His mind wanders and he begins to feel a sense of whistling. While wandering, he meets an older, wiser man who advises him to think of the consequences of his actions.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of oxen. Aunt Polly refuses, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his thoughts.
