The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper time. His clothes are dirty and he has a black eye. He has been doing the worst things. On his return, Aunt Polly reproaches him and tells him he will be skipped school that afternoon and next morning. Tom has been skipping school since he found out how much his father was losing on a bad investment. Tom's mother has been dead for four years, and Tom's father has never been able to sustain his family. Tom is the only boy in the household and has his own way of doing things.

Tom and his new arrival are still very much at odds. Tom is defiant and eventually chases the newcomers all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom’s friends try to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of stonewall. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Starting new conversations in the workplace! I recently sat with a college counselor who wanted "the 411" on Managing with Aloha from my perspective as the book's author. She's new in her role with a local college which has used my book in their MBA program for several years now, and she called me for an interview when she began to read it.
